Defender hd 1080p 8- channel 1tb dvr

Top positive reviewAll positive reviews › Joe D Sellers5.0 of 5 starsGreece system! On June 14, 2017, it was reviewed in the United States. Luckily the builder was flexible and allowed me to do my own install. I didn't use pre-made cables, but instead ordered and installed a Siamtic cable as I made a new my go would be longer than what was allowed by the supplied cables. Do all my cable go right after the electricians made their electric cable go and just before the insulation install. Luckily it was during the cooler months in Oklahoma, so the only issue was climbing through the attic. I own a Defender system before this in which I did use pre-made cables, and then using a siams cable at this time, I recommend the latter if you have a budget and are happy with making up video/power ends. My reason for this is, you are less likely ever to have a cable go bad, and if you leave a lot of supplies to the ends of the camera and you have a terminal that doesn't go bad, it's very simple to fix, just cut and replace the end of the terminal. With pre-made cables you don't have this option, you'll have to run new cables, and the extra cost, time and work just aren't worth it in my opinion. As far as the cameras and the system itself are, I am quite pleased so far. I wish I had just walked with all the bullet cameras, as the dome cameras are a little less flexible about their movement to the area you're trying to cover, and the way they snap into housing seems a little thym. The bullets are very durable and more flexible for their arrangement to accommodate. Video quality is pretty good, is better quality, but at this price point they are better than most (both day and night). The system was very easy to create, just remember to write down your password after you change it! I was up and running for about 30 minutes. There has been no contact with customer service and therefore cannot comment on this aspect. Download the mobile app (iphone) and are very happy with how well it works as well. In general, I would definitely recommend this system. In the future, if I need another video security system, I will also definitely look at Defender first. Thanks or asking for a stock alert!
